THE WORLD OVER

$150,000 PAID IN DIRECT RELIEF

RUSSIA MAY JOIN THE LEAGUE

SHIP-TO-SHORE MAIL SERVICE

GLASS POURED FOR NEW 'EYE'

OTTAWA—The Dominion government has paid out for direct relief up to March 10, about $150,000, according to Hon. Wesley Gordon, minister of labor. With accounts yet to come in he estimated the total payment for the fiscal year of 1933 would be somewhat below the limit specified in the Relief Act, of $250,000.

PARIS—It was learned authoritatively on Thursday that Soviet Russia has about decided to enter the League of Nations, and may take the necessary action to do so at the September assembly.

It was said in diplomatic circles that soundings taken by Moscow leaders had convinced them that entry into the league would not only be welcome but that a seat on the league council was assured.

LONDON—A ship-to-shore air mail service cutting down the time required to move mail from Great Britain to Canada and vice versa to 4½ days will be in force this summer on Canadian Pacific Steamship lines. Such a service was temporarily in effect during the Imperial Economic Conference of 1932. Great Britain, Canada and Newfoundland will collaborate to establish and maintain the service on a regular basis. It was reported.

CORNING, N.Y.—Twenty tons of molten glass, to form the world's largest telescope "eye" were poured into a form on Saturday, before a distinguished audience of scientists. By nightfall the last ladle of brilliantly glowing glass was poured in the brick form which will stand for 16 months while the composition hardens. Ten hours were required to transfer the liquid glass to the form, where it has been heating since February 15, to the mould house in a brick kiln.

It is as the scientists anticipate, the 260 inch mirror emerges from the annealing tank flawless, it some day will enable man to gaze into the mysterious depths of the great void beyond the earth. The astronomical vision will be increased 30 times in volume.

ALBERTA WILL ESTABLISH DEPARTMENT OF TRADE AND INDUSTRY

EDMONTON—Establishment of a provincial bureau of trades and industry, to be added to government services already effective, was announced last week by Premier J.E. Brownie, who has introduced a bill into the Legislature.

Opinion among members, who hailed the premier's announcement with general rejoicing, was that the bureau would be linked up in some way with the trade commission's office. It is expected that particular attention will be paid by the bureau to coal mining as this has been reached the point of being the second largest industry in the province.

With the rate being set on Alberta coal this year there is every likelihood of an increased Ontario market and the new bureau will have a large field for activity there. Other industries such as biscuit-making, sugar beet manufacture, clothing and other also should benefit from the activities of the bureau.

In the old days if anyone missed a stage coach he was contented to wait two or three days for the next one. Now he gets out a squawk if he misses one section of a revolving door.

WHAT ABOUT SOCIAL CREDIT, CANADA?

This series is an explanation of the Douglas Social Credit Plan. Mr. William (W.) A. Riddell, an advocate, is explaining the plan to his friend, Mr. Jones (J.). The scene is Mr. William's home, and the conversation takes place during an evening visit.

No. 9
Author's note: We are aware that Canadian banks do not lend on real estate but we used the term "house" in order to simplify the illustration. The same effect results from the construction of a factory that is financed by public subscription to a bond issue. "I want you to see the situation clearly," that neither interest (which some people call "usury") nor dividends, nor his land monopoly are concerned in the problem. People who concentrate on these superficial points are overlooking the real problem. The main point to note is that the wages paid for making these cars are less than the price we should have to charge for them if we are to remain solvent. For, as you have admitted, it is absolutely necessary for us to add an amount, large or small, to the cost of the car before we can sell it. But here is the extension of that illustration. Suppose Joe Black, instead of repaying his loan, had taken the money we paid him for the first house and invited us to build another under the same conditions. And suppose that we went on just as before and built a house in our spare time, saving all the money he paid us in wages. Now he again offers to sell us the house and we pay him five thousand dollars. Assume that it is not necessary for him to repay the bank loan immediately as we can consider that we start working for the fur business as soon as we acquire a one house and we pay him five thousand dollars. There is $10,000 in prices represented by the cost of these two houses that we can recover in addition to any other cost of our product. But there is only $5,000 in the community to meet it. How can we get $10,000 from the community that has only $5,000?

J. "I don't know. How are we stuck against us? And all businesses today have to try to beat the insurmountable handicap. If WFF succeed it is only at the expense of another producer who goes bankrupt because WE are lucky enough to receive the purchasing power HE has distributed. Or else we succeed because by reason of export credits we are able to export the surplus which he cannot export. The farmer here is in his predicament. We will take up this export business later."

J. "This looks pretty hopeless. I can't figure out how industry has been going."

W. "I will take that up in a minute. But there are three things I want to point out that this is not the whole story. First, the fact that the money is not available for a long period. But what frequently happens is that the money is invested in some line of production before it has functioned as purchasing power for consumer's goods. J. "Well what is the effect of this?" W. "The same situation arises as we saw earlier after the houses had been built. There will be a shortage of purchasing power."

J. "How?" W. "Suppose a man paid a certain sum of money for making hats. He would be selling $5 out of the $100. At the end of twenty weeks he has $100 which he lends to a farmer for use as liquid capital in his business. The farmer buys supplies with it and his selling price of his product will have to include this $100 of cost. Now the community has $100 and it could use it either to buy the $100 worth of hats left unsold by reason of the woman's saving or else it could repay the farmer by purchasing his product. But it cannot buy the farmer's product and the hats."

J. "Why not?" W. "Because there are $200 of 'costs' standing against the community and only $100 in purchasing power."

LARKHAM COLLINS TO SPEAK IN CARBON ON DOUGLAS PLAN, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 4

Larkham Collins, Chartered Accountant of Calgary, will speak in the Farmers Exchange hall, Carbon at 2 p.m. on Wednesday, April 4th, the subject of his speech being "The Douglas Plan."

Mr. Collins was one of the men that were summoned before the Legislature last week to give information to the Alberta government on the Douglas Plan. He believes that many difficulties would arise for the province to attempt the plan alone, but in his opinion, it would be quite satisfactory if undertaken by the Dominion.

EDWARDS ELECTED TO THE EXECUTIVE OF MINER TEAM

Percy Edwards, Carbon Hotel proprietor, was elected to the executive of the Drumheller Senior Hockey club at the annual meeting held in Drumheller last Thursday night.

W.F. Pulton was elected president, and the secretary, business manager and coach will be the same. The Douglas Plan will be discussed by the Executive. It will consist of Charles Johnson, Edward Melville, Marvin Piper, Jack Gamble, all of Drumheller, and Percy Edwards, of Carbon.

The meeting was strongly in favor of securing the services of a full-time coach, and a proposal was made that the business men purchase the arena, which is now in the hands of the receiver.

of the flaw. There are contributing factors.

J. "What—more?" W. "Yes, considering 'wages.' Now we are brought up to consider saving as a virtue and while children are not the breath of thriftiness inculcated in us, but today saving is a vice. The reason is that who does not save is his own enemy but a friend to the community, while the man who saves is certainly benefiting himself to the detriment of the community by withholding needed purchasing power."

J. "What does he mean that out?" W. "Well, we have discussed the question sufficiently for you to have grasped the fact that the only money available to purchase any object is that which is distributed during the production of that object. If part of the money is withheld then the production cannot be sold."

J. "But if a man saves money in order to buy a house, what about that?" W. "That's all right if it is eventually spent for something which he is going to consume or use for personal use even if the purchasing power is not available for a long period. But what frequently happens is that the money is invested in some line of production before it has functioned as purchasing power for consumer's goods."

J. "Well what is the effect of this?" W. "The same situation arises as we saw earlier after the houses had been built. There will be a shortage of purchasing power."

The April 1st issue of McLean's Magazine contains a story of interest to many people of this district. "Tucker Peach Round-Up" written by Vernon Leachman, and the editor tried to get facts last July for a story in the anniversary edition, but was unsuccessful, so we publish a resume now for the interest of our readers.

The story is based on facts, doubt gathered from police records, and relates how two ranchers were pursuing forces here the Bow River 20 miles west of Calgary. The work was tireless and the sun hot, so the men decided to go to the river and in before nightfall a heavy rain. They discovered the headless body of a man, partly decayed, and almost unrecognizable. They reported their discovery to the Royal North West Mounted Police at Calgary and after investigation did not reveal anyone in the immediate territory to be missing, the body was ordered buried.

Some time later a couple strolling along the river found the skull of a man, with a patch of greyish hair on the scalp and a hole in the forehead. This was also evidence of a grooved bullet wound in the forehead. The police and Sergeant Marston were called to investigate and finally, placed in the article offered for sale, to convince him that the body was that of Tucker Peach, an Englishman who was killed near the Bow River in England. He was a miserly old fellow, but never kept his money in a bank.

It was said that Tucker had sold his ranch to a man by the name of Mitchell Robertson, a C.P.R. brakeman, but evidence showed that Robertson had employed a young lad to look after the place.

Some time later, and just before the spring thaw was to be held Robertson was found drunk at Marston's and was arrested on a vagrancy charge. He was also one of the witnesses at the inquest. While awaiting for his evidence to be given, and under guard of a police officer, Robertson was nervous and confessed that he had killed Tucker Peach. The officer took the evidence and when Robertson was released he was very much concerned in the case as himself. The plot thickened with the admission that John Hay was the owner of a livey barn at Carbon, and was formerly Tucker Peach's neighbor.

Robertson's evidence revealed that he and Robertson planned the crime at Carbon in Plak's livey barn, and on May 21st—the day of King Edward's funeral—they went to the livey barn in the morning to Peach's shop and when admitted through the door Plak and Robertson entered Peach's shop and then gave the gun to Robertson and ordered him to go to his share of the crime and Robertson fired a shot into Peach's body as he was falling. (The men were to split Tucker Peach's assets as they shared.) The above was all in Robertson's confession of the crime before Plak was arrested.

Following the confession, Plak was ordered arrested and was approached by two R.N.W.M.P. officers in his barn at Carbon, where he denied knowing anything about the case. He was taken to the livey barn and was ordered, and Plak was arrested and taken into custody. Later evidence showed that Plak had nothing to do with the case and was not even able to buy the livey barn at Carbon. The evidence was disconcerting.

When Robertson, however, Plak maintained firm, believing that no other evidence was available to prove him. He was the partner with Robertson in the crime, except Robertson's evidence which was not sufficient to convict him. Sergeant Marston did give up in this regard and was finally awarded by finding a neighbor of Tucker Peach's who gave evidence that he saw Plak and Robertson drive over a little-used road toward the river on the morning of the King's funeral. With this and other evidence Plak and Robertson were charged with the murder while Robertson received a sentence of life imprisonment.

Many of the old residents of Carbon and surrounding district remember this crime well, and many in Macklin's magazine will not doubt bring back old memories. Plak's livey barn was situated across the road from the residence now owned by A. Hay, and was destroyed by fire in 1930.

MAJOR DOUGLAS TO SPEAK IN CALGARY ON APRIL 7

With so much discussion these days by many enthusiasts on the Douglas Social Credit plan, many in the district will be pleased to know that Major Douglas himself will speak on his plan in Calgary on Saturday, April 7. Arrangements are now being made for the meeting, which will be held under the joint auspices of the Men's Canadian Club and the Group of the Open Mind.

Peddlers Making Annual Invasion Into Country

Our attention was drawn to the fact last week that a common "peddler" was in town visiting the various houses in the district, for the purpose of canvassing. Incidentally he did not call on the editor.

We cannot stress too firmly that it is an iniquitous citizen who patronizes the peddler or house-to-house canvasser. The ladies particularly of this town are immune to the charms of the handsome young man and will buy without inspecting the goods or first giving the local merchant a chance to note on the article offered for sale. It has been mentioned that the Village should not allow these peddlers to operate around town without first obtaining a license. However, according to provincial statutes any person taking orders for goods for future delivery, and providing he has a provincial license, can operate in any town or village without paying an additional fee.

It is the duty of every citizen to be at home wherever possible. If this way he helps build up the town in which he lives and makes it a better place to dwell in. The prosperity of one neighbor will in time mean the prosperity for all.

The peddler or house-to-house canvasser does not pay taxes, help to maintain churches, schools and other public institutions. He does not dwell in a town and spend his money among the merchants and business men. He buys from the manufacturer.

The peddler's nuisance is just building to make his rounds. After he has peddled his wares, he is seen in the morning the jack he made in the country, he finds that once more he must make his winter's sales. This time he calls around, from him down cold. He isn't selling anything that your town merchant can't sell to you. He is just a peddler, and he gets that his goods are what he represents.

Be fair to your town. Help it prosper. Close your door to the peddler.

GRASSHOPPERS CONTROL MUST BE PRACTISED

A WORD ABOUT GRASSHOPPERS (By R. J. Milligan)

During the past three years climatic conditions in the Central and Southern part of Alberta have been unusually favorable for the increase in numbers of certain species of grasshoppers. As a result these now constitute a serious menace to the grain and other crops in the affected areas.

The area affected has been clearly defined in the article sent out by the Provincial Department of Agriculture.

These conditions are exceptionally unfavorable for the young hoppers that will hatch from these eggs. It is almost certain that increased control measures will be necessary during the spring and summer in order to safeguard crops.

It must always be remembered that grasshoppers can be killed with far less expense and trouble while they are wingless and still in their breeding places, than they can be after they are flying and scattered through crops. It therefore behooves every farmer to be on the lookout for signs of the emerging young hoppers, from the first of May until the middle of June. In one territory last spring three or four farmers were on the lookout for signs and obtained poison in time to prevent the grasshoppers spreading through their fields, whereas, their neighbors did not accede to the danger until it was too late and the hoppers had spread through their crops, thus creating a much larger problem of control. This need should have been necessary. This incident has been cited to point out the necessity for concentrated thought and effort. In this connection one neighbor refused to poison because he did not want the cost of the poison to be added to the tax burden already being shouldered by his neighbors.

This was false economy because the hoppers bred on his farm, moved to the surrounding area and spread everywhere as far as the wind carried them, and in this way more trouble was enlarged and instead of the burden of cost being decreased it was increased for the present season.

The provincial secretary announces that the date of issuing a license entitled to a discount has been changed from Sunday April 1 to Saturday, March 31. The change in date will enable car owners to buy their license at the lower figure and use their cars during the Easter holidays.

The 25 per cent discount will be allowed on freight volumes only as it affects the wholesale rating. No reduction is to be given on licenses based on weight of truck vehicles.

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt and Peter Anson, young and in love, marry secretly, intending to live their own lives apart until Peter is able to provide for her. Peter is a young, struggling sculptor trying to win a competition for a scholarship abroad and Camilla is the adopted daughter of a wealthy family. She is not to inherit money when she comes of age and is studying commercial art in the hope of landing an agency job. Others in the story are Avis Werth, another wealthy girl who is trying to win Peter, Sylvia Todd, Peter's model, and Gus Matson, his former roommate with whom he has quarrelled. At a party at an exclusive club Peter entertains Camilla's guests with impersonations. When the rest of the members of the party go to a cabaret to continue the evening, Peter and Camilla slip off to the beach by themselves and fall asleep on the sand. When they awake it is early morning and Avis and another boy are standing near them. This makes it necessary for Camilla to announce before the party that she and Peter are married. Bowman and Weeks, an advertising agency, who Camilla has submitted some of her work and for her and told her that a new account which requires unusual treatment of juvenile art. To Camilla's surprise she learns that the account is for her father's company, which she is to manage. On an extensive campaign to bolster up lagging business. After a conference with Mr. Bowman, Camilla decides to attempt the work. The critics were enthusiastic about her work, and Mr. Weeks offers her a salary of $50.00 a week to assist in a project of having it doubled. She goes to keep a dinner engagement with Mr. Hoyt, who tells Peter of her good fortune in securing employment. Mrs. Hoyt is also informed that Camilla has obtained work and is going to leave the Hoyt household. Camilla Werth rents a studio on the same floor as Peter, and invites him to live with her.

CHAPTER XXXV

After all, what was the harm in accepting Avis' friendly hospitality? She had managed it so that Peter would seem absurd to refuse. His only concern was for time, and that had been about to run to the corner lunch counter for something to eat, anyway.

"On one condition," he warned her, severely.

"Oh, I know what you are going to say. I am not going to encourage you to linger after the last and ambrosia. He ate hungrily and chattered amiably. Avis marked a score on her mental chart.

She would not be so astute as to ruin a good start by indiscretion. The way to make a man believe he wanted a thing, very much was to let it become a pleasant and voluntary habit with him. In other words, to make Peter believe he wanted her companionship and the comfort of her solicitous concern for his welfare, more than anything else, was to allow him to develop a casual habit of accepting them. She would force them upon him gradually until she made him believe he sought them without being aggressive—easily, naturally.

It was she, even, who suggested firmly, when he had done ample justice to the food and was smoking leisurely in a deep armchair. "Isn't it about time you went back to your work, old amiable?"

"Your quotations are all jumbled," Avis laughed.

he apologized. "But, seriously, that's the first decent meal I've had for a week. I hope I didn't eat the glut."

Avis was clever. She did not repeat the same strategy too often. Sometimes, it was just a steaming cup of coffee, handed in to him at the right moment without personal interruption, or an ice drink in the evening when he had stopped work for the day, followed by a friendly goodnight.

For contrast, there were several days at a time when her door was closed and her rooms devoid of human sounds, while she filled social engagements or remained anxiously at home. But she was never absent from the studio long enough to allow Peter's growing sense of loneliness to merge into forgetfulness. She dabbled with her painting, entertained or just amused herself, striving for patience and a friendly indifference toward Peter at the same time that she displayed an intense interest in his work and progress.

So subtle was the effect upon Peter that he soon forgot his aversion to an importunate neighbor, dropped his antagonism toward the Avis Werth of the past whom he concluded he had judged too severely, and became so accustomed to her friendly concern for him that he relaxed into its pleasant comfort as he sat wearily and gratefully into one of her cushioned chairs and sipped a refreshing drink at the end of an arduous day.

Contains Complete History Of Calgary 46 Years Ago

Handled by countless work-hardened hands, yet carefully placed away so that the next visitor might find something with which to while away the long hours, an old publication of great interest to students of history has been found in a deserted cabin in the Caribou district, eight miles from Barkerville, and brought to Calgary by R. Forster.

How long the magazine lay in the cabin is unknown, but it was published in 1888 and probably was taken into the gold mining district in that year. It gives a complete picture of the Calgary of 46 years ago, mentioning business leaders who are still active in the affairs of the city. It mentions the first cattle shipment to the United Kingdom in 1888. From this district 12,000 head were sent, but a portion of these were sold in Montreal.

Now! Ease Sore Throat Instantly!

1 Crush and dissolve 2 Aspirin Tablets in water.

2 GARGLE thoroughly—move your head up and down, allowing a little to trickle down your throat.

3 Repeat until you feel better.

Remember: Only Medicine Helps Sore Throat

Modern medicine knows no throat ailment more common than sore throat. A way that eases the pain, rawness and irritation is as little as few or five minutes!

It requires medicine—like ASPIRIN—to do these things! That is why throat specialists throughout the world are prescribing this ASPIRIN, because it gives place of old-time ways.

Be careful, however, that you get Aspirin Tablets for this purpose.

Aspirin is the trademark of The Bayer Company, Limited, and the name Bayer in the form of a cross is on each tablet. They dissolve completely enough to gargle without leaving irritating particles.

We noticed a team of horses died up near the hitching post on Tuesday, covered with horse blankets to keep on the cliffs of the weather. It is never often that horses are blanketed, even in the coldest weather, but after being driven to town these are the facts that even the horses feel the cold and they deserve better treatment.

We understand that Paul Scherger has taken over the John Deere agency.

TENNANT—HUME

A pretty wedding was solemnized Friday evening, March 25th, in Knox United church, Drumheller, when in the presence of a large gathering of friends, Martha, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Hume of East Coulee was united in marriage, to James Tennant of Mountain Park, son of Robert Tennant, of Drumheller. Rev. H. D. Leitch performed the ceremony. The bride was given away by her father, while the bridesmaids were her sister, Miss Ivy Hume, and Miss Ada Crowder, and the best man was Luke Hulsebeck, of East Coulee. The bride wore white crepe, with veil, and wreath of orange blossoms, and carried a blue corsage with blue picture hats to match, and each carried a bouquet of sweet peas.

Following the ceremony in the church the wedding party motored to East Coulee, where the bride's mother was hostess at a dainty wedding supper. Later a reception was held in the Star Theatre.
